EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Col. Thomas. Ochiltree is for Blaine.

Chatauqua lake will be more attractive than ever this season.

Governor Pattison has no faith in the insanity dodge as practiced by lawyers.

The great business failure in New York last week will be felt by some people very Keene-ly.

Chairman Cooper thinks he can easily figure up a majority for Blaine on the first ballot.

Bass, the great English brewer, is dead at last poor fellow. He has been aleing for a long time.

France and England will jointly consider Egyptian affairs. What they leave to the heathen will be worth looking at through a microscope.

Old Tom Hendricks is still fooling along with the notion that the lightning may strike him. He won't be near enough to the storm to hear the thunder.

Kellogg's escape on a technicality does not vindicate his character, but, in this case, it is extremely likely that he will take what he got and say nothing.

The Prohibition State Committee of Pennsylvania, according to the statement of Chairman Barker, is out of debt and has eighteen cents in the treasury. But it is a party for principles not for spoils.

Oregon, Montana and Washington Territory are "solid for Blaine." There are not many votes in the Northwest, we are aware, but there seems to be a sufficient number to offset the opposition from Wall street.

It might be advisable for young men to stop going West and give the girls a chance. From the report of the Superintendent of Schools in Illinois, it appears that there is a superfluity of about 19,000 boys in that State.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the well known iron and steel manufacturer of Pittsburg, has made a gift of $50,000 to the Bellevue hospital medical college of New York. His name will pass into history as a public benefactor.

The Mormons have been discovered to possess one virtue which might be more extensively practised by the outside world. They settle their domestic difficulties at home, and seldom figure in divorce courts.

Patriot Aguero has begun to proclaim, and the Spanish authorities are proclaiming, and, as usual, Cuba is just on the verge of proclaiming, independence. But it never seems able to pass beyond the incipient stage of the movement.

The present outlook for the iron-workers is not a rosy one. The stubbornness of both sides portends a strike in Pittsburg, not for an advance, but to prevent a reduction in wages. It will be bad for all concerned if no middle course should be found.

The candidate who is personally the most popular receives the most abuse, but the friends of that popular candidate have never been guilty of abusing other candidates to further the interests of their popu[illegible] idol. This fact should [illegible] sufficient to satisfy everybody [illegible] any opposition to him that [illegible] exist, is entirely influenced [illegible] may honest motives.

A Question of Safety.

James G. Blaine has ceased to be a private individual, but by no act of his own. Many admirers of the now greatest of Americans respected his personal wishes not to be a candidate and hesitated to do anything to draw him from private life, unless, without their agency, public opinion should again make him prominent. The N. Y. Tribune, in a convincing editorial on the subject, remarks that the case has now changed. Mr. Blaine is the chosen representative of a powerful body of Republicans whose wishes the party cannot safely treat with disrespect. If there are valid reasons for preferring another candidate, it is right they should be given. But the proposal to put him aside because somebody has lied about him will not be received with patience; and the assertion that Mr. Blaine is a dishonorable, unfit and unworthy man will be resented as an insult by a large body of Republicans.

These are the naked facts, which the party should now seriously consider. It is not a personal preference for this or that man with which the party has now to deal. It is a question whether the wishes of Republican voters are to be respected, or the desires of office-holders in Democratic districts. It is a question whether the campaign of personal vilification which began when it was found in 1876 that President Grant was not the choice of the majority in Republican States, and which followed President Garfield to his grave, shall now enable unscrupulous defamers to dictate to the Republican party.

At this hour, Mr. Blaine is the unquestioned choice of a majority of the Republican voters in Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Oregon, Nevada, and California. Two states are definitely for Mr. Edmunds, Massachusetts and Vermont. Illinois is definitely for Logan and Connecticut for Hawley, and the preference of two minor States may be disputed. These are all the States that the Republicans can expect to carry. The sixteen States in which the Republicans prefer Mr. Blaine cast 2,723,302 Republican votes, chose 194 electors, and gave for Garfield 400,000 majority. The two states that prefer Mr. Edmunds cast 210,772 Republican votes, chose 19 electors and gave 80,000 majority. The State for Mr. Logan cast 232,164 Republican votes, chooses 22 electors and gave 7,000 majority. The State for Mr. Hawley cast 67,071 Republican votes, chooses 6 electors, and gave 3,000 majority. The two undeclared States cast 63,047 Republican votes, chose 8 electors and gave 11,000 majority. Thus in the States that the Republicans can hope to carry, those for Mr. Blaine cast at least four-fifths of the Republican votes, choose 197 electors, and give 400,000 majority; while those for all other candidates, or undecided, cast in all 573,044 Republican votes, or less than one-fifth, choose 57 electors and give 100,000 majority.

There remain sixteen States which the Republicans do not expect to carry. In these, by proscription, fraud and the shot-gun, the Democrats gave 490,000 majority in 1880, and the [illegible] States now have 153 electoral v[illegible]es. In some of them [illegible] Mr. Blaine is the choice [illegible] of the Republicans, but in most [illegible] the influence of patronage dicta[illegible]re influent choice, as it did in [illegible]es a differ- Thus the case stands [illegible]876 and 1880.

	N[illegible] Ele[illegible]	[illegible]s.	Rep. Vote.	Majority.
Rep. States, Blaine	16	197	2,723,302	R. 398,929
Rep. States, other,	[illegible]	51	573,044	R. 100,958
Dem. States, ——,	[illegible]6	153	1,158,660	D. 490,424

The questi[illegible] shall b[illegible]n is whether a nomina- cratic Stat[illegible] dictated by the Demo- the Rep[illegible]s, or by the minority of States [illegible]eblican States, in spite of the dep[illegible] upon which the party must an[illegible]nd for success. If patronage [illegible]d log-rolling nominate anybody, against the wish of the great majority of Republican voters, especially in the States on which the election depends, how will such a nomination fare at the polls?

With patronage, vilification is employed. Slanders refuted again and again are raked from the garbage heap, and thrown by one set of men in order that another set may say, "It would be unsafe to nominate a man of whom such things are said." Stop a moment! Would it not be infinitely more unsafe to defeat, by means so base and so sure to arouse resentment, the candidate preferred by the great majority of Republican voters?

Take away the States in which the Republicans have no hope of success and Mr. Blaine would be nominated on the first ballot. Is that sort of preference to be beaten by defamation and patronage combined? If so to whom would the nomination be of value? Can it be Mr. Arthur, who carries not one Northern State, not even his own? Can it be Mr. Edmunds? Can it be some dummy, unimportant in force, in services, or in the history of the party, picked up because one faction or another can use him? Shall such a man, because of a lie and the influence of patronage in Democratic States, be placed above a strong statesman, whose abilities have made him a natural leader of opinion, and whose splendid leadership has brought the Republican party many of its victories? Will that be safe? Before doing such a thing, a Republican Convention may well consider how Republican voters will feel about it. Politicians cannot do the voting this year. To treat the will of the voters with contempt may prove, of all conceivable courses, the most unsafe.

A Needed Reform.

There is a species of Protection not included in the tenets of Republican doctrine on the subject, which we would gladly have incorporated as a part of that doctrine and hereby recommended it to our Republican friends. The particular species to which we allude is the protection of American laborers from the inroads of the vast hordes of foreign laborers—barbarians—who are being brought here from other lands (China, Japan, Italy, Hungary, etc.) to work at merely physical labor at smaller compensation than will suffice for the existence of American workmen, accustomed as they are to a more civilized mode of life.

Understand, please, that we do not refer to the foreign skilled mechanic whose presence among us is always welcome because it is for our benefit. A foreign mechanic, while never a "Jack at all trades," is usually master of one.

It is quite true that on general principles an employer has perfect liberty to hire whom he pleases: the choice of his employes is a [illegible]ject of which he is sole arbit[illegible]. But when in doing so he intr[illegible]oduces the abuses of other cour[illegible]ries into his own; when he r[illegible]ries into his dignity upon th[illegible]erpetrates an inland who he[illegible] people of his own him; wi[illegible]e stronger claims upon which [illegible]e he produces results will interfere with the health and happiness of the people about him; then the personal liberty must be restrained for the common good.

No one should be more willing than a Republican to acknowledge that the lower classes in foreign countries live in a condition of misery, filth and degradation that is indecent, and that we do not care to see imitated in America. In ambitions, tastes and desires they are but slightly elevated above the beasts. It is merely the superiority of American lower classes over those of other countries, or rather because there is no corresponding class in this country, to which we owe one hundred years of rapid progress, while in foreign lands progress has been scarcely perceptible. As an illustration, it is said that Bellefonte has a larger number of telephones than the entire city of Berlin. This superiority has always enabled even the most humble, industrious citizen to earn enough for "daily bread" for himself and his family; to provide them with clothing and education; so that some of the master minds of the country have been born in log cabins, and have elevated themselves to places of honor and emolument.

But all this is being changed. The employment of the low and criminal classes of other countries, on their own terms, is depriving the willing workmen of America of the means of subsistence; of health and happiness. They cannot exist on the meagre fare which the foreigners require, and the indecent, unclean habits of the strangers are sickening to them. They become tramps; their morals, minds and bodies deteriorate; their sons imitate their fathers example; their wives become worse than widows and their daughters sink into ways that are vile. Apply ink to snow. The ink won't become white but the snow will be discolored. The barbarian rabble will drag our own respected American citizens to their low level. An evil worse than slavery threatens our free land. Then we were making slaves of a different race and color; now we are making slaves of our own brethren.

Moreover, these invading hosts have no idea of becoming citizens. As soon as they can accumulate enough to return to their own land thither they will go. So they have no ambition or desire to adopt our customs. Their presence here, aside from the work they do, increases vice and crime and may be regarded as obnoxious. The amount of money carried away from the country by them is a drain on our resources, and the country is far poorer in the end than if a native born citizen had been employed instead of the foreigner and at living wages.

This is not a question which has yet entered into politics, but politicians should give it their attention. Let the Republican party—the party of broad humanitarian principles—pledge itself against this evil. Make it a plank in the platform of the Chicago convention. Strenuously advocate legislation which will prohibit the importation of foreign paupers and criminals while American workmen are in enforced idleness.

There are men who believe that the party in power are in some [illegible] responsible for anything of [illegible]an evil tendency that may occur. [illegible] natural. The fact, h[illegible]owever, th[illegible]at these foreigners, if [illegible]g any manne[illegible]of means they bec[illegible] ably cast [illegible]e citizens, in vari- that they recognize that p[illegible]arty as their companions in vice. The Republican party have a [illegible] reform to m[illegible]ake in relation to [illegible] this great wrong. The Dem[illegible]ocrats have neither the "gu[illegible]mption" or honesty to take ad[illegible]ntage of it; let the Republicans r[illegible]se to the requirements of the occ[illegible]sion.

We are pleased to see that Blaine contradicts the report that he intended to b[illegible]ring suit against Puck for libel. It is scarcely credible that one [illegible] who exchanged hard blows with th[illegible]e fierce Ben Butler on the floor o[illegible] the house and gloried in the rude [illegible] conflicts, should be frightened by a coarse picture. Greeley contented himself, when assailed in the same way, with calling Nast "a pictorial blackguard and dirty dog."

It has become fashionable to berate Fred Douglass, but the result of the conference of colored men shows that he is yet strong enough to lead the leaders of his race. There was a well defined attempt to capture the body in the interests of the Democracy, but Mr. Douglass defeated it. In doing so he has added one more to the already great list of valuable services to his people.

The New York advocates of cremation claim that friends and funds are being steadily gained to the cause. Over $11,000 has been raised to build a crematory, and it is reported that a large number of people outside of the society have paid the fees for the burning of their bodies.

In departmental reports this country is credited with a navy. Let Congress give us something worthy of the name.

Both the friends and enemies of Blaine make a very awkward mistake when they discuss that distinguished gentleman's "candidacy." Blaine is not a candidate in the old-time scrambling way of Arthur, Edmunds and others. He has never said that he will accept the nomination and he is now, as he has been, in the hands of the people. He is deeply engaged on his book, and pays no attention the political situation. Why should a man who can write the most popular book of modern times aspire to be president? But if the people demand it he will be willing at the proper time to lead them to victory. Although Tilden has declined the nomination, Blaine has not declined it. Tilden talks about it, however, much more than Blaine, and perhaps the former would be willing to try, if his prospects were equal to those of the Plumed Knight.

Of the 820 delegates elected to the Chicago Convention the Philadelphia Press designates their presidential preferences as follows: Blaine 357, Arthur 282, Edmunds 70, Logan 51, Sherman 23, Hawley 12. The number necessary to nominate is 411, of which number Blaine lacks 54. But the Press says that Blaine's estimate is less than the number of delegates he will probably have as it gives him the benefit of no doubtful ones, and it is believed that Logan's 51 delegates, recognizing the impossibility of nominating their candidate, will vote for Illinois' second choice, who is the Plumed Knight.

In the event of ex-Governor Curtin declining a renomination for congress in the XXth district, Senator Peal[illegible]e expects easy sailing in Clinton [illegible] and some of the other counties [illegible] Mr. T. C. Hipple has also been s[illegible]oken of as a candidate, and it is [illegible]ot likely that he will quietly sit [illegible]down and allow the handsome ex-s[illegible]nator to sweep the board and pocket the honors. But we doubt the report that the venerable "War Governor" will relinquish his hold on the office if there is any chance of a renomination.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

If the attention of the chief clerk of the late lamented House of Representatives, had not been called by the Telegraph to the fact, that his subordinates garbled the journal—the official record—of that body for the extra session, when would he have learned the fact? Let the pachydermatous pantaloon with the marmoraceous cheek exercise his pulestrical ability on that question.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The above is very forcible after it has been explained by the aid of a Webster's unabridged. It refers to Hon. P. G. Meek, who is probably able to answer the question for himself.

The relic fiend has invaded Washington; he prowls around the departments, the executive mansion, and does not object to picking up anything lying around loose. Armed with a small hammer, he nexts visits the capitol and knocks off the toes of marble statuary, wherever found, and mutilating specimens of art, like the bronze door opening into the rotunda. Such people ought to be lynched.

The conventions of California, Oregon and Nevada prove the accuracy of the postal card canvass made by the San Francisco Argonaut three weeks ago. Out of 3000 replies 2700 were for Blaine. The campaign postal card is the finger on the public pulse.

We hope no one rejoices over the depression from which England's industrial interests are suffering, but nevertheless we observe that it does not tend to corroborate the theory that protection is responsible for the depression here.

Vennor predicts frost in July. We are glad he does because it is conclusive evidence that Jack Frost will remain away during that month.

The New York Democrats have postponed their convention until the middle of June.

Secretary McCook recently found the old seal of the United States Senate. It was made in 1825 and is as big as one's hand. The bill for cutting it was $30, but it never appeared to have been used.

An umbrella carried over a woman, the man getting nothing but the drippings of the rain, signifies courtship. When the man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings, it indicates marriage.

In the palmy days of ancient Greece, babies were treated in a summary manner. If the little thing was not welcome the father could send it out to be fed to the vultures or give it away as he would a puppy. They had not much use for girl babies in those days.

The introduction of steam pipes into enclosed spaces for the purpose of extinguishing fires has been successfully tried in Berlin. The owner of a steel pen factory in that city, in consequence of the repeated outbreaks of fire in the drying room, had steam pipes placed in three of the rooms, this appliance being shut off by short, soldered pipes of an easily flowing alloy of lead and tin, arranged to work automatically. One day a hissing noise made the foreman aware that one of these appliances had been called into action. It was found, on investigation, that the contents of the drying-room had become ignited, but that the steam thus set free had extinguished the fire before it could spread.

The recent liberation of slaves in the province of Ceara, Brazil, has started afresh the abolition movement in that country. During the week's festival held last month in Rio de Janeiro to celebrate the event telegrams and letters were received from nearly all of the provinces stating that the planters were freeing slaves in large numbers, and three municipalities, with 1952 slaves, reported that they had been liberated. The latest official returns, embracing all the provinces of the slaves, do not come later than June 30, 1882, when the number existing appeared to be 1,346,648, being 195,582 fewer than the 1,542,232 registered. The real number of emancipations the Journal do Commercio thinks it about 100,000, and the existing slaves about 1,200,000.

PRINTEMPS.

To the Editor:

Here is a balmy little thing
To fill your heart with joy;
But as it is a song of spring
I send it by a boy.

THE POEM.

The vine on the cot is blowing
The nest is built in the tree,
And the apple limbs are snowing
Their blooms in the fragrant lea.
The bird to his mate is singing,
The lambkin skips on the hill,
And the rosy clover's springing
Beside the gurgling rill.
Sir Strephon his love is sighing,
The cricket begins to chirp,
And the boy in the back yard's tying
The can to the brindled purp.

Above the lake in the hollow
That mirrors a cloudless sky
Is darting the airy swallow
And the purple dragon-fly.
The bumble-bee in the garden
Runs riot the livelong day,
And Maud in her Dolly Varden
Plucks flowers along the way.
Sir Strephon his love is sighing,
The cricket begins to chirp,
And the boy in the back yard's tying
The can to the brindled purp.

POSTSCRIPT.

If this poetic daisy
Should make you sad and sore
And get you wild and crazy
To spill me on the floor,
And hurl me through the casement,
Or maul me like a toy,
And drop me to the basement,
Why—take it out of the boy!

EPITAPH.

Beneath this stone lies Johnny Green,
An office-boy of modest mien,
Who found the pathway to the tomb,
Straight from an editorial room.

"PEANUTS HAS RIZ."

There's trouble in the circus,
The menagerie's in a row,
The camel's got his back up,
Sad is the sacred cow.
The elephant's in mourning,
Worn is the monkey's phiz,
For the fact is very certain
That "peanuts has riz."

The country maid is weeping,
The city belle is in pain,
The little lady and lasses
Sigh out their hearts in vain,
Neither the tariff question,
Nor yet the Mormon biz,
Can obviate the statement
That "peanuts has riz."

Our Story Teller.

A Slight Mistake.

Gray and ice-cold the twilight had darkened over the Stone Tower, until the ruddy glow of the fire became insufficient to dispel the creeping shadows, and Nannie brought in the lamp.

It was a great, low ceiled room, with an antique-carved cornice and a wainscot of oak which reached above Nannie's shoulder—a room where the faded crimson hangings shut out the dying daylight, and the pattern of the carpet had long become indistinguishable.

And the three blooming, bright eyed young girls in this ancient room seemed as much out of their element as a cluster of rosebuds would have been lying on an Egyptian sarcophagus. But Col. Copely liked seclusion and antiquity. Moreover he liked economy. And when he brought his three motherless daughters down to the Stone Tower, he grimly gave them to understand that they too must teach themselves to like these three aspects of life.

"There's one thing," Col. Copely, who was a man hater, added to himself, "they'll get no beaux here! No girl ought to dream of a beau until she is twenty-five years old, at the very least!"

Which was rather hard on Ada and Nannie, who were nineteen and seventeen, and had their pretty heads full of vague visions of love and letters. And even little Bess, the youngest, who had barely turned fifteen, had an ideal in her brain, with dark, melancholy eyes and a brow like ivory, which she hoped might be realized one day in a suitor.

And upon this windy March night, when Col. Copely was in the city, and Miss Baird, the governess, was confined to her room with an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, Ada and Nan were going to a surreptitious party.

"Of course papa wouldn't let us go if he were at home," said Ada.

"And we couldn't manage it if Miss Baird wasn't laid up, either," sagely added Nan.

"But everything happens for the best," said Ada. "Do look at this lovely, gold-colored silk, Nan. Wasn't it good of Mary Sinclair to lend us the three dresses to choose from? I think I'll wear the gold-colored silk with this black lace mantle."

"And I," said Nan, who was pink and plump, with china-blue eyes and radiant, bronze brown hair, "shall wear the white, all brocaded over with pink rose-buds and the rose-colored satin slippers. Oh, Ada darling," pouncing upon her sister with a little, ecstatic kiss—"we shan't know ourselves, shall we?"

"Couldn't I go, too?" pleaded Bess, whose gypsy beauty gleamed in between the apple-bloom faces of her sisters like a Jacqueminot rose among white moss pinks. "Couldn't I wear the pretty garnet silk that neither of you have chosen?"

"Nonsense!" cried Ada. "You are only a child, Bess!"

"I shall be sixteen in nine months," urged Bess. "And I'm almost as tall as you and Nan. And I never, never was at a grown-up party in my whole life!"

"Bess," said Nan, with autocratic severity, "hold your tongue. It is quite out of the question. You are to stay here with Miss Baird—"

"But Miss Baird is always asleep in the evening!" whimpered Bess.

"So much the better for you," pronounced Nan. "And you look after the house."

"The house won't run away," pouted Bess, still rebellious.

"That isn't the question under discussion," said Ada. "Get the work-basket now, like a darling, and help us tuck up these dresses a little for Mary Sinclair is at least half a head taller than we are. And there is no time to lose."

Bess drew a deep sigh and obeyed.

"Why was it," she argued within herself, "that she must always be put down and snubbed, and kept in the background, because she was the youngest, and wore short frocks and her hair braided in two Chinese tails down her back. If ever she was a grown-up young lady, she'd show them!"

But Bess got a little better natured when she was allowed to make waffles her ownself for tea, in the absence of Eliza, their sole domestic, (whose brother had bethought himself to fall of fever, half a mile or so up the mountain, at this auspicious time, of all others), and to select a jar of raspberry jam by way of accompaniment.

For Bess, tall though she was, had not quite outgrown the age of tea-sets and delight in playing at housekeeping. And she arranged the tea-rose buds in her sister's hair, and gave the last dainty touch to their dresses—Bess was a born lady's maid, the girls declared, laughing,—and looked regretfully after them, as, with their splendor all shrouded in black serge cloaks, they hurried down the frozen road, two merry, fleeting shadows.

"Oh dear!" said Bess, aloud, "how I wish I was going, too!"

Then she winked the tears down, and ran back into the oak-wainscoted room, where the lamp still glowed, and the logs blazed and snapped on the hearth, so hurriedly that she never once remembered Ada's farewell caution as to the locking and double-locking of the outer door.

Miss Baird was asleep, after her supper and her medicine. There was no use going to her for companionship; for she snored and slept with her mouth open, and was not in the least an ideal slumberer. And the kitchen was very lonesome without Eliza, and even the cat was too drowsy to purr or frolic with a ball of knitting-yarn.

"What shall I do?" said Bess. "Oh, I know! I'll try on the garnet silk dress, and fancy I'm a grown-up young lady going to a ball!"

She was walking up and down the floor, trying to see herself in the old Venitian mirror that hung above the tall, wooden mantel, when the creaking of a board in the hall startled her. Flying to the door, garnet silk, train and all, she came face to face with a man.

"I beg your pardon!" he said, apologetically; "but you did not hear the knock, and—"

"What do you want?" cried Bess, all in a panic. "Go away, at once!"

"I called to see if the young ladies—"

Bess waited to hear no more. Vague ideas of peddlers, tramps, burglars, midnight assassins, floated through her brain.

"Yes," said she with assumed coolness, "they are at home. Please walk in."

And, opening the nearest door, she motioned him to enter. As it was dark therein, how was he to know that it was the coal cellar, or that the next minute the door would be shut and bolted upon him?

"There!" cried Bess, exultantly, her dark eyes shining like balls of fire, her cheeks turned from deadly pale to glowing red.

"But stop a minute!" pleaded a stifled voice from the other side of the door. "There's a mistake. I wish—"

"Yes," said Bess, "there is a mistake! You are mistaken in supposing that I am going to be imposed upon. Now, stay there until I call the coachman and the two stable hands, and unloose the dog!"

(Which four last, be it understood, were entirely a fiction of Miss Bess' imagination).

She stood a second or so, to consider Miss Baird must not be excited or disturbed—at least, so the doctor said. Besides, of what use could Miss Baird possibly be?

"I'll go for the girls," said Bess. "I'll be at the ball, after all!"

So, folding a shawl about her pretty, taper shoulders, away she shot, like an arrow, quite heedless of the lace-lined train of the garnet silk dress.

Hazel Hill, where the ball was being held, was not more than a quarter of a mile from Stone Tower, and, lighted from garret to cellar, it presented a very pretty sight to Bess's wondering eyes.

She posted herself on the veranda, just where a casement had been opened to cool the perfumed atmosphere of the dancing-room, and there, with big, sparkling eyes and cherry cheeks, half hidden by the shawl drawn over her head and ears, she watched to catch a glimpse of Ada and Nan.

They were dancing. Bess would scarcely have known them, so radiant they seemed—their exquisite borrowed dresses set off by lights, their faces flushed by happy excitement—and at last Ada sat down by this very open casement, smiling and fanning herself, while her partner hurried to bring her some refreshments.

All of a sudden a cold little hand fell on her dimpled shoulder. She started and looked around.

"Bess! Goodness me! it can't be possible?" she exclaimed. "What on earth has brought you here? Is Miss Baird dead? Has papa come home?"

"No," answered Bess, sepulchrally. "But I've caught a burglar. Call Nan, and come home at once; because, maybe, he'll break loose."

And so Ada never got the refreshments, and Nan didn't finish her waltz with a whiskered young gentleman from Montreal. And Harry Sinclair, the brother of the hostess, accompanied them back to Tower, with the tallest of the waiters, two revolvers, and a blackthorn stick which would have done credit to Rory O'More himself.

Thus backed up, Bess drew the bolt, unlocked the door, and called in stern accents to the sequestered victim,—

"Come out, you villain!—come at once."

Whereupon a tall, rather pleasant looking young fellow emerged, shivering with the cold, and having the traces of coal dust on his white shirt collar and light kid gloves.

"Who are you?" savagely demanded Harry Sinclair.

The gentleman presented his card.

"My name is Safford," said he. "Col. Copely requested me to call here and bring his daughters back to New York with me. Here is a letter from him. He has taken a house in Forty-seventh street, and—"

"Goodness me!" gasped Bess, clasping her hands over her eyes. "And I shut him in the coal cellar!" For one dread second there was silence, then they all burst into a peal of contageous laughter, which broke up all ceremony at once, and rendered them all excellent friends.

Mr. Sinclair, with the tall waiter, the revolvers and the blackthorn stick, departed; and Bess, with a little of Nan's amateur assistance, served up an impromptu meal of bread and toasted cheese, which was pronounced a decided success. Eliza returned in a little while, and the household was restored to order.

The next day commenced the packing for removal. Eliza was to remain in the Stone Tower until Miss Baird's convalescence, and the three girls returned to New York with Mr. Safford. And this gentleman, strange to say, appeared to cherish no malice against his fair little jailer.

"On the contrary," said the shrewd Ada, as the season advanced, "I do believe he likes Bess the best of us all, or he would do so if she wasn't such a child.

"But she's growing older and prettier every day," said Nan.

"Yes, she outshines both of us," said Ada, with a laugh.

So that, as the two sisters agreed, there was no telling what might happen one of these days. But if they venture to question Bess herself on the subject, she only laughs and blushes, and coyly hides her face.

"Because, you know, my dear sisters, I'm not a grown up woman yet," says Bess. "On the contrary, I'm 'only a child!"

Ticket Scalpers.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

There is a law pending before the Legislature of Maryland to prevent "Ticket Scalping" and to confine the traffic in tickets to the authorized agents of the railroad companies; the bill under consideration is similar to that which has been so effective in this State both in protecting passengers and the railroad companies from the loss arising from the purchase and sale of fraudulent tickets or of tickets improperly procured. There were recently convicted in our courts a number of trusted employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Pullman Car Companies, against whom the charge of embezzlement was sustained.

These men were all respectable and honest until they were tempted to dishonesty—tempted to the loss of reputation and position, and, in fact, into prison by the ticket scalpers. Every ticke fraudulently abstracted or withheld by them, it was proved on their trial, was subsequently sold to the scalpers at largely reduced rates and resold to travelers to be used a second time. Thus the railroad companies suffered severe losses, and in cases where the frauds were discovered in time the passengers holding the scalpers' ticket were subject to loss and inconvenience.

No railroad company is secure from loss, no railroad conductor safe from temptation, and no passenger free from danger of buying fraudulent and useless tickets, so long as ticket scalping is egalized. The railroads that are carrying passengers upon terms so favorable should be protected from fraud, their employees from the temptation that robs them of home, friends, and employment, and passengers from inconvenience or fraud. The law of Pennsylvania is exceedingly popular, and a similar one should be among the statutes of every State. Only through and by the operations of a like law can absolute security be afforded to the railroad companies, their employees, and the traveling public; but until such a law becomes common in all States, travelers should refuse to purchase from scalpers, lest they become involuntary partners in a fraudulent traffic, and suffer the consequences of their own act.

"I notice," said one lady to another, "that at our social gathering you are always the last one to leave." "I know it," was the reply, "I have an object in view." "What is it?" "I want to prevent the rest of you from slandering me." "O you mean thing; you never like to see your friends enjoy themselves."

Sure to follow suit—Costs.

Bob Ingersoll's Log House.

The plans of Colonel Ingersoll's log house in New Mexico are unique and hence interesting. Mr. Ingersoll has recently purchased from ex-Senator Dorsey, of Star route fame, an interest in his huge cattle ranche in New Mexico. This ranche is situated in Colfax county, in the northeast portion of New Mexico, and consists of some 24,000 acres of land in over one hundred "locations," which include all the valuable springs in that section of the county. Dorsey's ranche, which is valued at $2,000,000 and has 45,000 head of cattle on it is located about the centre of the county. Upon this he is building this house for Colonel Ingersoll. The building is to be entirely of logs, with the bark upon them, but dressed down thin and well oiled. The rooms will number over twenty, some of them as large as a good sized New Mexican house, and as they are strung together in the most peculiar and fantastic shapes possible the building will be a curious one. To such an extent is the rustic idea carried in the construction of this queer, quaint building that even the window frames are to be of wood, with the bark still upon it. The windows are to be of odd, fantastic shapes, with stained glass; no two of the seventy five or one hundred in the great building are alike. Colonel Ingersoll's family consists of but four people—himself, wife and two daughters—yet the house is to be large enough for 30 people. The entire building is to be one story in height, except as to the library, which is surrounded by an observatory 30 feet high.

Colonel Ingersoll's log house will cost from $10,000 to $15,000. The estimate on the house itself is $10,000, and when fences and fountains and grounds and telephones and affairs of this kind are added, the cost will run up to nearly $15,000. The curious octagonal library at the western end of the great house is to be well furnished with books, for Colonel Ingersoll and his family are to spend the summer months from June to October there. Every room is to be furnished with a large fire place, and there will be large tall chimneys, some inside and some outside, as the tastes of the architect may suggest, constructed of red brick and dressed stone. There will be broad verandas and wide halls, the windows large and roofs high and steep. The distance around this huge, straggling, fantastic log structure will be 940 feet, almost a quarter of a mile.

What Colonel Ingersoll's idea is in thus preferring to bury himself in the far southwest during the summer months has been the subject of considerable speculation. It is understood, however, that one of his objects is to get away as far as possible from the very features which would surround him at the more popular and populous summer resorts, and thus enable him to give undivided attention to some literary works which he has for some time been desirous of undertaking. One of these is on the doctrines of Christianity, written in his own peculiar style, and another a philosophical work, which it is expected will prove to be both interesting and valuable.

The Chinese Objection to Railways.

Foreigners in China, (writes our Pekin correspondent) make a great outcry about the stupidity of the Chinese in holding out against railroads. Chinese do hold out against railroads, and they are quite right in doing so. They feel that to introduce railways at present would be to flood the country with engineers, contractors, managers, machine mechanics, engine drivers, etc., etc., and once there the Chinamen fear they would never leave, but get a hold on the country, and that China would come a second India and pass under foreign rule. Rather than have the foreigner they go without the railway and abide their time. Railways and all the rest will come as soon as they can make and manage them without our help. Coming up to Pekin from Tien-Tsin I was surprised to look out of my boat and see telegraph posts stretching along the country, and learned that there had been a telegraph established between Tien Tsin and Tung Chou, a place fifteen miles from the capital. It was erected under foreign supervision, but it is said to be worked entirely by Chinamen. China feels herself competent to work a telegraph, and has it, not only from near Pekin to Tien-Tsin but from Tien-Tsin onward to a river port near Shanghai. As soon as China feels that she can work a railway the railway will come.

None There Now.

Wall Street Daily News.

He was a Cincinnati reporter, down South to feel for the political pulse of the people. When he reached Birmingham, Ala., he asked a policeman for the whereabouts of a free trader who would be apt to "pan out" on an interview. The officer walked him about half a mile and then turned him over to a second, and the second passed him to a third. The third was walking him to the city limits, when the reporter inquired:

"Does he live far from here?"

"Live? Why, the man is dead!"

"Dead?"

"Certainly. I thought you wanted to see the tree on which he hung himself. He got so lonesome here that he evenspoiled a good harness to get rope to choke himself with."

The young lady from Vassar does not speak of a clammy sweat, but of a bivalular transpiration.

Short Temperance Talks. No. III

BY MISS C. S. BURNETT.

No. 3.—Some of the mistakes they make.

By they I mean the men who in any way are engaged in the liquor traffic. It is a mistake to suppose that the money for which no equivalent is given can ever bless them or their families. "It is the price of blood." It is a mistake to suppose that the sighs and prayers of the widowed mother and worse than widowed drunkard's wife which daily enter the court of heaven are unheard and will be unheeded. "Vengeance is mine; I will repay saith the Lord." Retribution may seem slow but it is sure. "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting," is written against every one of these workers of iniquity.

They make a mistake when they think that the law-abiding American citizens will forever sit still and see the debased from other lands come here and fasten upon us, in spite of law, the vices which caused the proverty and degradation in the homes they left. It is right that America should stretch out her arms to welcome all the oppressed of other lands but she should say "Leave behind you that which caused your oppression. If you cannot do this stay away. If you who are here do not like Sunday laws you are free to go back to the land where lager beer and potato whisky flow free to your destruction." It is a mistake to suppose that our 7,000,000 voters will be forever held in the clutches of the 500,000 men who are engaged in the rum traffic. The money which has ruined our homes will not always purchase votes enough to hold "the balance of power." The whisky power made a mistake, so far as it is concerned, when it declared "We will vote only for such men and measures as will support our cause." They placed temperance in politics, not the temperance people. We are only meeting them on their own ground. They fight for, we against, but there is yet the vast army that stands between and do not want to help either side. They want the whisky power controlled but also want their vote. The vote of this class is a curse rather than a help to any party. It is a mistake to suppose that the present order of things is going to last. Because men now defy law is no reason why they should always do so. God's Word says, "Woe to him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips." It is a mistake to suppose that this woe so often denounced shall not finally overtake the evil doer. Sin is always a mistake.

What Garfield Read.

Garfield read everything, and his knowledge was prodigious. The record of Congressional Library at Washington will show that he read more books than any other member of Congress. The number of volumes taken from the library, examined, read and returned, were never exceeded in one year by any man who used the library except Charles Sumner. But this reading was only a small portion of what he did. Histories, novels, newspapers and a wide range of miscellaneous matter were devoured. Shakespeare was his favorite poet and Tennyson was oftener in his hand than any other song writer of modern times. He loved Burns, too, and spoke often of the enjoyment he had derived in perusing Thackeray, Scott, Dickens, Kingsley, Jane Austen and Honore de Balzac. His books all bore his library motto, "Inter Folio Fructus"—"Fruit Between the Leaves."

"Don't you sing, Mr. Tenpercent?" Miss Trilliloo asked at the musicale. "Well, not quite," replied the old man, "but I come pretty near being musical. I just shave the notes." And little Miss Trilliloo thought he was a barber.

No, my son, never be so rude as to tell a man he lies. Just refer to him as "the oldest inhabitant," and his reputation for mendacity is assured.

In connection with the recent victory of General Graham at Trinkitat it is observed that the famous Scotch regiment again held the post of honor, marching firmly into the thickest of the fight to the music of the bagpipes. The Scotch bagpipe is undoubtedly an effective instrument of war. It saves a great deal of bloodshed. Its wild strains scare the untutored Arab into a dead run.

Putting Waiters on Roller Skates.

Chicago Hotel Reporter.

A novel and original idea is being experimented on by the proprietors of the Paxton Hotel at Omaha. Having observed the rapidity and ease with which persons move about on roller skates, it occurred to the Kitchen Brothers, proprietors of the Paxton, that possibly dining-room waiters, with the requisite amount of practice, could therewith facilitate table service. With this end in view the head waiter drilled his crew, and a few days ago the first experiment was made. A patron of the house writes us that with the exception of two of the boys who came down with the trays, everything passed off well.

The proprietors declare their intention of giving the scheme a thorough trial, and the head waiter says he can and will make a success of this new style of service. If the skates can be made noiseless and the waiters become expert skaters, we do not see why, at least in large dining-rooms, the roller skates cannot be made very useful. The project is at least worth trial, and the proprietors in question are to be commended for taking the initial step toward a possible improvement of dining-room service.

Patti in San Francisco.

San Francisco Chronicle.

"I do not exaggerate," said Mme. Patti, "when I tell you that my reception here is the loveliest I have received in the United States. Indeed it surpasses anything I ever saw, except in Russia. There the people are just as cordial and sympathetic. Here the audiences are more sensitive, more appreciative than anywhere else, but they are not as great judges of music as some of the best audiences of Europe. They are very fond of melody. But I am surprised at the critical taste they showed in other respects, in the superb toilets and beauty of the ladies the audiences here are much superior to those in New York.

"Indeed, you may truthfully say that they excel even Paris and London, nor is the saying a great deal; many people will call it exaggeration, but it is really true.

"I was never once interrupted by applause till I was finished. Many audiences break in upon the singing before it is ended. That is always done unless the audience is familiar with the music. But here the audience was perfect till the end."

Drowned in the Susquehanna.

COLUMBIA, Pa., April 29.—Jacob Read, a fisherman, was drowned in the Susquehanna river at this place to-day while attempting to swim across a swift channel between a rock and the shore. A dozen persons witnessed the drowning. Read had on his person about a hundred dollars, the last of a legacy of twenty-five hundred dollars which had been left him a few months ago and which he had been spending in dissipation. He had been on a spree.

—J. O. Boggs, Esq., of Harrisburg, says the Patriot, has invented a valuable labor saving machine to be used by flagmen on railroads. Heretofore a flagman had to leave his train when anything is wrong ahead or the train delayed and losing time and flag the approaching train, and also place percussion caps on the rail. By this invention of Mr. Boggs' this can all be avoided and much valuable time saved. The machine is made to be attached to the last car of the train and contains twenty-seven percussion caps. It is worked by a spring movement with lever attachment. To place a cap on the rail a lever is used and the spring forces the cap to the rail and at the same time a clamping attachment tightens it on the rail while the train is in motion. It is an entirely new invention and has taken years of study to bring it to perfection. Mr. Boggs has received a patent right on the device and it has been highly approved of by the railroad officials whom he has consulted for some time past.

—On Wednesday evening, six persons were confirmed in the Episcopal church of this place. Rt. Rev. Bishop M. A. DeWolfe Howe was present to perform that rite, the congregation being quite large and service impressive. The Bishop was unable to deliver a sermon, but his address to the candidates for confirmation made amends for this deficiency, and was exceedingly beautiful and impressive.

A Few Conventions on Wednesday.

CALIFORNIA.

OAKLAND, April 30.—The republican state convention organized with E. F. Davis as chairman. After the appointment of the usual committees a resolution was immediately offered that the delegates be instructed for Blaine. It was referred to the committee on resolutions and the convention then took a recess.

MAINE.

BANGOR, April 30.—Governor Frederick Robie was renominated by acclamation and it was carried by a rising vote. The following delegates-at-large to Chicago were chosen: J. R. Baswell, Geo. C. Wing, Joseph S. Wheelright and J. H. Drummond. The resolutions presented the name of James G. Blaine as their choice for the presidency. The convention adjourned with cheers for Blaine.

WEST VIRGINIA.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 30.—The republican state convention met here and elected delegates to Chicago and instructed them to vote for Blaine as long as there was a reasonable chance for his nomination.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, April 30.—The republican state convention met here today. The district conventions were held this morning. The entire delegation from this state is for Blaine.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., April 30.—The straightout republican state convention met here to-day, with 120 delegates, more than half of whom were colored. John F. Desendorf called the convention to order in a brief speech, and was followed by General Wickham. Committees were then appointed.

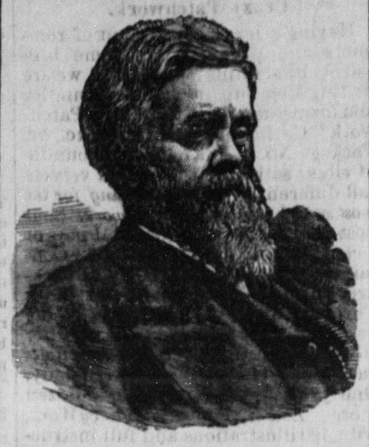
The resolutions don't instruct the delegates, but declare that the nomination of Blaine and Lincoln will inspire such strength that the south will never stand again empty handed before the north.

A Speculator's Failure.

NEW YORK, April 30.—James K. Keene stated to an Associated Press representative this afternoon that "in an effort to maintain my position in a falling market I have paid out millions of dollars within a few months to protect my privileges, and finally determined to-day to call a halt for the general protection of all with whom I have business." Francis Bassett, a privilege broker, holding some of Keene's puts on the Erie and Western Union, states they were not honored on presentation to-day.

The news spread rapidly and soon his office was besieged with anxious customers and creditors, who fought with each other to gain an entrance. His secretary, Mr. Wells, confirmed the report of his failure to meet his engagaments, and said that it was owing to unfortunate speculations. He said that Mr. Keene would make no statement to the public at present, but would furnish a statement at an early date to those who are interested most intimately in his affairs. It is understood that Keene's transactions have been principally in stocks of Erie, Western Union and Union Pacific companies. It is also said that he was severely bitten in recent shrinkage of values in Northern Pacific and Oregon and Transcontinental stocks.

We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries, and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co. (Lowell, Mass.), who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious, and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leaves room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have an ambition to carry a gold watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a SOLID GOLD WATCH CASE, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus is not only needless, but undesirable, because gold is a soft metal and cannot furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case permanently strong and close-fitting. The perfect watch case must combine gold with some metal that will supply that in which the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the James Boss' Gold Watch Case TRADE BOSS MARK which saves the WASTE of needless gold, and INCREASES the SOLIDITY and STRENGTH of the case, and at the same time reduces the cost ONE HALF.

Send 2 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

A Missing Steamer.

LONDON, May 4.—The steamship Devon, from New York, has arrived at Bristol and reports that she picked up two lifeboats of the steamer State of Florida, without occupants or gear. A sailing vessel bound west signalled the City of Rome on April 23, in latitude 46 degrees, longitude 42 degrees, that she had the shipwrecked crew of a state line steamer on board. The City of Rome arrived at Queenstown April 26. The two lifeboats of the State of Florida picked up by the Devon were in latitude 47 degree 25 minutes, longitude 34 degrees, 10 minutes. The captain of the Devon feels certain that the occupants of the boats had been taken off by some passing vessel. The Devon passed wreckage, evidently from the State of Florida.

The City of Rome makes the following statements in regard to the signal of the sailing vessel which she spoke April 23: The first signal was "Shipwrecked crew." Then followed two other signals, the first of which was supposed to be "State," and is presumed to refer to the State of Florida. The manager of the State line at Glasgow believes that there was an accidental explosion of dynamite on board the State of Florida. It is believed that dynamiters were among the passengers on the vessel.

LONDON, May 4.—It is no longer doubted that the ship which signaled the City of Rome saved some, if not all, of those on board the State of Florida. It is calculated that the disaster occurred on the 18th ult., at which period the wind was blowing from the east. Boats would drift until rescued. They must have been launched, because they were so fixed that they would not otherwise have floated. The fact that the boats were without gear or oars is regarded favorably as indicating that the rescuing ship secured the oars and gear and allowed the boats to drift away. One of the boats is life boat No. 1. The other is a small new boat, and is not numbered. The officers are of the opinion that the State of Florida struck an ice berg, as the captain of the State of Pennsylvania reports ice in the region in which she is supposed to have been at the time of the disaster. The dynamite theory is not received with any favor whatever. The inventory shows that the cargo was shipped by two well-known firms, and all small packages on board had been accounted for. The detectives who have been reported as awaiting the arrival of the State of Florida were seeking to arrest an embezzler who was supposed to be on the vessel.

The Ravages of Smallpox.

SHENANDOAH, May 1.—Up to within a few days ago it was thought that the ravages of the smallpox was checked, but yesterday seven new cases were reported, and as far as known there are now fourteen cases. In one family there are seven cases. There have been three deaths since the disease broke out. At Jackson's Patch the disease holds its own. At a meeting of Lodge No. 591, I. O. O. F., and of Camp No. 112, P. O. S. of A., held last evening, it was decided by both to furnish nurses and relief to any of the members taking the disease. To-morrow night the Grand Army of the Republic will also take action on this question. The hospital on the Ringtown Mountain is now ready for smallpox patients, and the Board of Health last night decided that where nurses are required of them the patients must be taken to the hospital.

Brisbin Destroyed.

HOUTZDALE, Pa., May. 2.—For some days past the woods in the vicinity of Brisbin and Houtzdale have been on fire in different places. No decided move was made toward stamping it out, and it gradually drew nearer the town of Brisbin. This morning a heavy gale from the westward set in and blew the flames in the direction of Hoover, Hughes & Co.'s mill. Men were promptly put to work fighting the fire fiend, but without avail. Shortly after seven o'clock the hose, which has always been kept in readiness for an emergency of this kind, was playing upon all parts of the mill. At 12 o'clock the whistle sounded an alarm of fire and the most strenuous exertions were made to save the structure, but without avail. It finally caught and in a short time the greedy flames were doing their fearful work in the immense lumber piles. Brisbin is situated between two hills, the mill being at the western end of the town and with a steady gale, carrying the flames from house to house, it was but a short time until the space between the hills was a seething mass of flame. We have no means of estimating the loss, but it is enormous. Hoover, Hughes & Co.'s mill and lumber yards, their office, Hoover's stores, Simon Dinger's store, Theigot hall and at least 250 other buildings were burned. But few people saved anything and the scene is agonizing in the extreme. Several sick persons were taken from their homes with great difficulty. Over one hundred families were bereft of everything in the world save the clothing they wore. Mrs. Duncan, an old and respected lady, was caught by the fire and burned to death. During the progress of the fire a Hungarian was detected appropriating articles which were being taken from a building and was most severely kicked and beaten. Another party of Hungarians who were detected drinking beer from several kegs in the burning district were made to decamp hastily by an officer, as threats were freely made against them. The fire, it is said, was started on Sunday last by a party of Hungarians, who took that day to clear a patch of ground by fire. Much indignation is felt against them, and it is likely they will be obliged to leave this section.

Mr. T. C. Cryal, the engineer at Hoover, Hughes & Co.'s mill, remained at his post until completely surrounded by fire. He was compelled to twice bury himself in the earth to save himself from being burned to death. He finally managed to get through the flames and made his way to the top of the hill above Brisbin, where he was found by Dr. Whittier and removed to the home of the latter. From the doctor it is learned that his condition is critical, and it is feared that he may be fatally injured through inhaling smoke and flame. The citizens of Houtzdale are doing all in their power to assist the homeless.

The following call for assistance has been issued: "We the committee of relief for Houtzdale, appointed at a general meeting of the citizens appeal to the benevolent citizens of the state of Pennsylvania for relief for the 2,500 needy citizens of our sister borough of Brisbin who were this day burned out of house and home. Money, clothing and provisions are needed." Thos. R. Carboy, chief burgess; W. H. Patterson, secretary; Theo. VanDuzen, treasurer.

Fitzgerald Wins.

NEW YORK, May 4.—During the evening the garden was packed as on Saturday night. Fitzgerald, the champion, remained on the track, walking slowly around, and was cheered almost incessantly. Panchot did some lively running during the evening. Rowell retired at 7.11, but afterwards came out and was loudly applauded. He then retired again and had his ankle bathed. It was swollen to nearly double its size and was black and blue. He appeared again on the track, but did not limp perceptibly. Noremac and Fitzgerald joined him and they tramped around the ellipse at a rapid pace. The house rose at them as they were joined by Panchot. Fitzgerald handed Rowell his Irish flag, which the latter took courteously. Fitzgerald caught up an American flag and another lap was made. The men then stopped at the scorers' stand and shook hands. Then three cheers were given for Fitzgerald and three equally hearty cheers for Rowell. The pedestrians went to their huts at 8.45 p. m., and the great six-days race of 1884 was ended. The following is the score of each of the pedestrians who remained out of the fourteen that started:

Fitzgerald, 610 miles in 140h, 34m. 40s.

Rowell 602 miles in 140h. 39m. 30s.

Panchot, 566½ miles in 140h. 26m. 15s.

Noremac, 515⅝ miles in 140h. 37m.

Herty, 539⅝ miles in 140h. 30m.

Vint, 530 miles in 140h. 14m. 45s.

Elson, 535¼ miles in 140h. 4m.

In Favor of the State.

HARRISBURG, April 30.—Judge Simonton filed an opinion to-day in the cases of the State against the Western Union Telegraph Company. Both cases grew out of appeals from tax assessments made on the capital stock of the telegraph company for the years 1879 and 1881. The Court gives judgment against the company in the first case for $13,481 and in the second case for $44,045. The company offered to settle the cases some time ago for $50,000, but as the Commonwealth claimed $147,269 the offer was refused.

A Lass Crowned Queen of May.

HUNTINGDON, May 1.—The crowning of the May Queen, a custom observed for a number of years past at the Brethren's Normal College of this city, was performed with appropriate ceremonies to-day. A society has been organized called the May Queen Society, composed of the girls students of the institution, by which the arrangements are made and the crowning done. Miss Cora A. Brumbaugh is the present president. The chapel of the college was tastefully decorated with ferns, flowers and evergreens, a throne erected, and a crown and sceptre procured. A large audience was present. Miss Annie Konigmacher, of Ephrata, Pa., had been selected as Queen of the May and performed her part in a royal manner.

A London Horror.

LONDON, May 1.—Fifty workmen were buried under the falling wall of Whiteley's building to-day. The establishment, which was in Westbourne Grove, was partly destroyed by fire on Saturday last. The walls did not fall at the time, and this morning, when a large force of men were engaged in clearing away the debris, the tall ruins collapsed and buried fifty of the laborers. A force was at once set to work to clear away the debris and rescue the men, if any remained alive, and they are now engaged at the work. Several bodies have been recovered.

Methodist Episcopal General Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—The general conference of the Methodists is largely attended. Bishop Simpson, Drs. Vernon, of Italy, Taylor, of Lexington, Ky., Trumbull, of Ohio, and Munroe participated in the opening exercises. Bishop Bowman is chairman. Addresses of welcome, were made by Dr. Fongacre and Governor Pattison. Bishop Harris presented, on behalf of a descendant of Benson, the commentator, the Bible used by Wesley. A committee was appointed to prepare a response. After drawing for seats, a recess was taken.

A Handsome Photograph Gallery.

This morning a reporter of this paper visited the photograph gallery of Mr. J. A. Finkbinder, the artist from Williamsport who has recently opened up a new gallery here, having leased the apartments occupied for a term of years by Mr. J. W. Moore. To say that the reporter was surprised would but slightly express his emotions at the time. Upon entering the reception room we were met by Mr. Finkbinder who extended us a hearty welcome by a shake of the hand and invited us to be seated. This room has been handsomely and elegantly fitted up with a fine carpet on the floor, and the walls and ceilings handsomely papered. The walls are also ornamented with fine pictures most of which are the work of Mr. Finkbinder. Here we were also introduced to Miss Ida Swigert, a charming lady and an accomplished artist who assists in finishing pictures and waits on customers, taking their orders, including the size and style of picture wanted, of which Mr. Finkbinder says he makes all kinds from the cheap tintype of 4 for $1 to the $100 crayon pictures. He says he has one of the finest of New York experts working for him in colors and can gaurantee satisfaction or money refunded. From this room we were shown into the operating room which has been handsomely fitted up, the walls and ceiling kalsomined with a light blue tint, which makes a very soft, agreeable light. The operating room is large, being 40 feet long by 17½ wide with two skylights to provide for increase of business. Here is a large collection of choice scenery all painted by New York artists. The instrument which Mr. Finkbinder uses is the celebrated euroscope manufactured by Voightlander & Son of Wien, Braunschweig, claimed by all leading photographers to be the finest in the world. Of course, the accessories—the dark room, printing room and toilet room—have been altered to a considerable extent and are now models of convenience. Mr. Finkbinder says that no picture shall leave his gallery that is not satisfactory provided a better one can be obtained. All things considered, Mr. Finkbinder has one of the finest galleries in this part of the State and we predict for him a glorious future.

—A contemporary writer says that many and many a young man whose aptitudes called to him with all the imperious demands of instinct to learn a trade, is prevented from doing so by his parents who prefer to see him filling the more important and dignified position of clerk, often working fifteen hours a day for $15 per month, and sometimes yielding to the small temptation to leave unpaid his tailor's and washwoman's bills. Or if he escapes the clerkship he is almost sure to be among the luckless ninety and nine professional men who stand off and eye with green envy the one in the round hundred who has made a success.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

St. Nicholas for May is a sparkling number. The covers for this number present a new combination of colors, which adds to its attractiveness. The opening article is by J. T. Trowbridge, entitled "The Scarlet Tanagen," and is full of interest and instruction. Young naturalists, especially, will find it entertaining reading. In "Supporting Herself," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, our girls will find much practical advice in regard to supporting themselves, and for the boys Maurice Thompson contributes the opening chapters of what promises to be an attractive hunting story. The Letter-Box and Puzzle departments are complete as usual.

Wide Awake for May has a charming frontispiece by W. L. Taylor, representing a pretty young miss "picnicing" in the attic. It forms one of the illustrations for Margaret Sidney's story of "Gladys." An excellent short story which will delight the boys is entitled "The President's Page" by Hope Ledyard, illustrated. Still another good short story is that of "The Tale of Charles Perrault," the famous author of Cinderella, Puss-in-Boots, etc.; it is a true account of one of the romantic adventures of the widowed queen of Charles I. of England. As interesting as any story, is the history of a New Hampshire boy given under the title of "A Young Antiquarian and His Society," by Amanda B. Harris. There are also sketches and poems by popular authors. D. Lothrope & Co., Boston, Mass.

Fun for All.—We have just received a handsome little book with the above title, which contains the material for much fun and home amusement in the way of riddles, conundrums, enigmas, and hints for acting charades. If parents desire to have their children amused, and also amuse themselves, they cannot do better than to send for this book. Sent post-paid to any address upon receipt of 15 cents by J. S. Ogelvie & Co., 31 Race street, New York.

The May number of Our Little Ones is out, and as usual full of interesting juvenile matter. "The Story of King Midas," "The Flies Nest" and "How the Twin Lees got Lost" are some of the illustrated articles that will please the little folks.

Readers of the North American Review will find much solid reading matter in the May number, just issued. Edwin P. Whipple contributes a lengthly article on "Mathew Arnold" and Richard Proctor, the eminent scientist, writes instructively of "A Zone of Worlds." The subject of "Workingmen's Grievances" is ably discussed by William Godwin Moody and Prof. J. L. Laughlin, both sides of the question being thoroughly treated.

The B. & O. is issuing a series of decidedly novel and handsome hand-books illustrating the scenes along that popular route. The work is by J. G. Pangborn and the ingenuity displayed in the designs is wonderful. The book is entitled "On Picturesque B. & O.," and General Passenger agent Lord, at Baltimore, will, with his accustomed kindness forward by mail upon request.

The opening article in The Century for May is entitled "The Salem of Hawthorne" by Julian Hawthorne. The article is written in a very entertaining style and is handsomely illustrated. Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer contributes a deeply interesting article, illustrated, on "Recent Architecture in America" and S. G. W. Benjamin has an attractive article on "The Bay of Islands in Calm and Storm," from which much interesting information will be gleaned in regard to the Newfoundland region. There are many interesting features in this number which will be seen at a glance at the table of contents.

Orange Judd, editor of the American Agriculturist for some thirty years, but unconnected with its business management for a year or two past, has lately retired from its editorial department and located in the West. He desires to gather a complete "Postal-Card Album" of his old readers and friends, and requests them to send to him now a postal giving their present location and address, naming also, when convenient, the year in which they were his subscribers. Mr. Judd's address is Chicago, Illinois.

Where a Railroad will Thread its Way.

The Clearfield Republican gives the following in regard to the extension of the Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern railroad :

"From Snow Shoe southward the work is being pushed to completion, track laying is going on vigorously and the track will reach the Moshannon above Peale, about May 15th. The road crosses the Moshannon creek into Clearfield county, at the mouth of Brown's run on a viaduct 720 feet long and 105 feet above the water. From this point the branch runs down Moshannon about eight miles to the new town of Peale. This branch is under contract and is being graded. From the viaduct the line is graded about five miles up the Moshannon by the Grow or Kyler mill, and a contract has been let to grade the branch from this point to Philipsburg. This and the Peale branch are both to be built by Senator King, of Schuylkill county. From the end of the Philipsburg branch the main line leaves the Moshannon, passes southward through old Morrisdale and along the Kylertown road to the top of the hill above Morrisdale Mines, where it turns westward and follows the summit past Pelton's, Parker's and Hummels to Wallacetown, and thence by way of Williamsgrove down Roaring run and up Clearfield creek to Ansonville. The line from the Moshannon creek to Wallacetown has been revised and will be put under contract for construction at once. The line from Wallacetown west will also be revised and put under contract at an early day. The Philipsburg branch will be completed by July 1st, and the company will be hauling coal eastward by June 15th, from the Kylertown coal field. Just as rapidly as construction can go the competing line of railroad is being pushed and will reach Clearfield and Ansonville coal fields before January 1st, 1885. Where the lines are to be pushed after these points are reached is still unsettled."

—Base ball matters, it is considered by many, do not occupy as much of the time of our young men as they should. It is aggravating to many that Bellefonte has neither a base ball nine or a brass band. There is superior material, they argue, for both a "nine" and a band. It is the intention to make a desperate effort to organize a base ball nine, and we trust for the sake of having our town equally balanced and that its sporting character shall not be deficient, that the effort will be crowned with success. Now, in Lock Haven a base ball nine is considered the great end and aim of existence. But while Bellefonters have more serious subjects—such as railroads, borough improvements, etc.—to occupy their attention, by all means organize, and don't allow any neighboring town to excel us in the great National game. And while considering base ball it is appropriate to inquire into the condition and prospects of the Bellefonte Boating Club, the Y. M. C. A. gymmasium, the Pedestrian club and kindred organizations. If any of our readers can give us any fresh, racy gossip in regard to these once prominent organizations its narration at this particular juncture in borough affairs may prove refreshing and entertaining.

Accident near Clearfield.

Jame B. Irvin, who resides at Wolf Run, two miles below Clearfield, met with a sad, and what may prove a fatal accident about 11.30 o'clock Wednesday last. Mr. Irvin had driven up the country to the farm of John B. Garrison where he transacted some business. On turning his back the horses took fright, started suddenly pitching Mr. Irvin out on his head with great force. The right side of his head above the eye was crushed and cut. He was carefully carried into the house, and at this writing (Thursday noon) is still unconscious. Dr. Maxwell, of this place, was called and rendered all aid possible. Drs. Hartswick and Van Valzah, of Clearfield, are also in attendance. Mr. Irvin is about 45 years of age. His recovery is doubtful. If careful and kind nursing is a help to the sick Mr. Irvin could not have fallen into better hands than good Mrs. Garrison.

Since the above is in type we learn that on Thursday the surgeons trephined his head taking out a piece of the skull and raising a portion, but to this Friday noon there was no improvement, Mr. Irvin being in an unconscious state.—Curwensville County Review.

—The family of A. S. Valentine are now located in the commodious stone residence near the Ironworks and the family of Mr. J. V. Thomas have moved in Mr. Valentine's former residence on Allegheny street.

—Almost everybody in Spring Mills attends Sunday-school, wherein the Spring Millers show their good sense,

—Rev. J. F. Delong, of the Reformed church, preached quite an admirable sermon on Sunday morning on the text, "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the sons of God." His exposition of what is implied in the relation of sonship with God was instructive and comforting. He dwelt on the significance of baptism as our birth into righteousness, believing that it is not an assurance of salvation any more than the natural birth is an assurance that the child will attain maturity without exerting the faculties with which he is divinely gifted. He spoke of the rich experience in store for those who are "led by the Spirit." The choir of the Reformed church is excellent, the female members of which are quite youthful and their fresh young voices mingle in delightful harmony.

—Preparations for the proper observance of Memorial Day are not progressing rapidly, probably because the veterans are reserving their energies for the great encampment to be held next fall, in which they will have to act as entertainers. Commander Benner has, however, appointed his committees and they will report at the next regular meeting of Gregg Post. All who can assist in the collection of flowers and other necessary articles are requested to do so. One of the most essential features of the occasion will be the closing of places of business, in which all should unite.

—The railroad news is discouraging. The Reading Railroad Co., who were the parties interested in the construction of the Beech Creek and Bellefonte railroad, have shown the white feather and retired from their part of the contract. Consequently, the building of the road will be delayed, but of course we have not renounced all hope. It is a road of great value not only to Bellefonte, but to whoever will build it. It is bound to be built eventually. But for the present we will let the matter rest. As we heard a gentleman say on Saturday: "Bellefonte can aid Brisbin and build a railroad, too."

—Of course, people do not bake as much in summer as they do in winter as they dislike the heat in their houses. Therefore, they are considering which baker they will buy bread from this summer. Permit us to suggest to them that Searfoss & Mayer, on High street, are first class bakers, they have a neat and elegant delivery wagon, a telephone and many other conveniences which enable them to serve customers very satisfactorily. Try their bread, cakes, pies, ice cream and other delicacies. Order by telephone.

Death of Peter Wian.

Mr. Peter Wian, who has for many years resided on Gen. Beaver's farm as its principal manager, died Wednesday morning after an illness of several weeks of consumption. The insidious disease accomplished its destruction very quickly for we remember Mr. Wian only a short time ago as apparently quite well and strong. He leaves a wife and several sons. Mr. Wian was much respected and widely known.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

An Ohio Cyclone.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 28.—Shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the most destructive cyclone ever known in this part of the country passed over the southern section of Montgomery and Greene counties, devastating everything in its course. It appears to have originated near Woodburn, a small town near here, and eye-witnesses describe it as appalling in its fury. An authentic statement is that the cyclone was formed by the union of light storm clouds from the south and northwest, which immediately assumed the form of a waterspout, rising and descending like waves of the sea, and destroying everything in its way. Mr. E. Best, of this city, who was near enough to observe accurately, says that it was fully one eighth of a mile wide and moved about the country in an immense cloud. Everywhere in its path was dark with trees and ruins of houses. Forests were mowed down like weeds for miles.

It is estimated that in this county alone twenty residences are in ruins, to say nothing of the loss of other buildings, live stock and farm property. At Alexandersville, six miles south of here, several people are known to be injured and one lady is reported killed, while saw-mills, barns and other buildings are destroyed. At Carrollton the Friends' paper-mill and other buildings are badly damaged, while a number of residences are reported destroyed. The telegraph wires are down in all directions, and the roads are impassible from the ruins that fill them. Near Woodburn the residence and other buildings belonging to Ed Wheatly with other property amounting to $20,000. Two farm hands are reported missing. Brick school house No. 9 is destroyed, and the roof was carried five hundred yards. Mr. Harris's house and barn are destroyed. A child was caught in the cyclone and carried two hundred yards, and dropped to the earth slightly injured. Mr. Mitchell's house and barn are partly ruined. Mr. Ridenour's property is badly damaged. Abnee Harris' barn and other buildings are destroyed. The names of other losers cannot be ascertained.

A special from Jamestown, Greene county, says: A terrible cyclone struck Jamestown at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Two-thirds of the town was completely ruined and six persons killed, namely: James Jones, aged 15, of Escupalia Springs, Ky.; Mrs. Ann Carpenter; Letitia Jenkins daughter of G. W. Jenkins; Miss Kate Boleler; Mrs. Stewart, a colored woman; son of James Pauls. Several were badly wounded. Hundreds of people were turned out of their homes. No estimate of damage is possible now. Further details cannot be given at this time. A large number of houses were destroyed and there must be heavy loss of life. In the neighborhood of Miamisburg there is very heavy damage.

In this city there was heavy rain and hail, but little wind. One freak of the cyclone is that in Dayton and a few miles south of it there was rain and hail, while south of it there was rain and no hail. Still further hail and no rain, and in the section of the country devastated neither rain nor hail. At Bell Brook, Greene county, at least fifteen farm houses are more or less damaged, but the families generally escaping by taking refuge in cellars. From Carrollton the cyclone took a direct easterly course, and its force was not in the least spent when it reached Jamestown, a thriving village of six hundred inhabitants, which is reported entirely destroyed, with only a few buildings standing. Meagre telegraph reports state that four people are known to be killed, while twenty are more or less injured.

PITTSBURG, April 29.—The interstate conference of colored men assembled in Municipal hall this morning. Delegates were present from Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, District of Columbia, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas and Louisiana to the number of seventy-five. Among them are Fred. Douglass and Bishop Green, of Ohio. The convention is composed of a fine body of men and the determination is expressed to prevent it from being used for political purposes.

At 1 o'clock Rev. C. S. Smith, of Bloomfield, Ill., in a stirring address stating the objects of the conference, called the convention to order, and Robert Jackson, of Pittsburg, was elected temporary chairman.

An address of welcome was made by William Barks, of Pittsburg, and the response was made by Robert Pelham, Jr., of Detroit.

Fred. Douglass was nominated for temporary chairman, but the convention approved the nomination of Jackson.

At the afternoon session a motion to allow Fred. Douglass to be heard gave rise to considerable opposition and calls were made for the report of the committee on permanent organization. Finally Douglass himself arose and said: "I am a member of this convention and my right to stand on this floor is equal to that of any other man. This is a conference of equals, not of superiors and inferiors. I do not come here to have leave asked for me to speak. It is not necessary that privileges should be begged for me. When the time comes I shall demand my right to be heard and I shall concede the same right to every other member of the conference." Lloyd G. Wheeler, of Chicago, was then chosen president and a committee on resolutions was appointed.

The Selinsgrove Fire.

SELINSGROVE, Pa., April 28.—At half past nine o'clock the fire alarm was given. Our citizens had just returned from services in the various churches and the streets of the town presented an animated appearance. Ladies and gentlemen arrayed in their best clothing hastened in the direction of the fire, which was in the alley west of Market street, between Pleasant and Pine. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, and was first discovered in the lower part of the stable of T. J. Schoch. It soon communicated to the large warehouse of Schoch's Bros., which was well-filled with merchandise of all kinds. A strong wind blew the flames northward, and all the buildings on both sides of the alley, between Pine and Pleasant, were consumed, twenty in number. Among them were the stables of Dr. B. F. Wagenseller, in which four head of cattle were burned—his horses were gotten out of the fire; the stable belonging to the First National hotel, Reigel's livery stable, Gemberling & Bros. large stove and tinware establishment. Three horses were burned for F. J. Schoch & Co. One of them, a fine trotter, had just been put in the stable on Saturday. The loss is about $50,000; partly insured. The fire was fought bravely by the firemen. The Sunbury Fire Company, in charge of Captain Waly, arrived after the buildings were all down, but played on the smoking rubbish.

ANOTHER DISPATCH.

SUNBURY, Pa., April 28.—Engines left here early this morning for the scene of a supposed incendiary fire at Selinsgrove, which at last advices threatened to destroy the village. The fire alarm wires were cut simultaneously with the breaking out of the fire just before midnight. The flames were first discovered in Schoch & Bros., warehouses, and communicating to other buildings destroyed property to the value of $80,000. Familes resident on Market street have removed their household effects, and the people are panic stricken. An attempt to burn the town has been made twice before.

Powerful Explosion.

HAVANA, April 29.—About 1 o'clock this afternoon the whole city was shocked by two terrible concussions in succession. The streets were immediately filled with frightened people, who believed that the city had been visited by an earthquake. It soon became known, however, that the powder magazine at San Jose on the opposite side of the bay had exploded. Many houses in Havana suffered severely.

LATER.—The first explosion occurred in the magazine of San Jose, adjacent to the arsenal, in which was stored a large number of grenades and shells. The force of the explosion took the direction of the gas works and all the gas holders of the Havana gas light company and all but one of those of the old gas company were broken.

The second shock, which was heavier than the first, was caused by an explosion of gas. It is impossible as yet to say how many persons were killed or wounded. Several bodies have already been found. It is known that there were in the magazine a detachment of twenty soldiers and an artillery officer who had been occupied for several days in removing powder. The military hospital at San Ambrosia arsenal and other buildings in the neighborhood suffered the most damage. In Havana balconies, windows and shutters fell to the ground in almost every street within the custom house wall. The hospital of San Lazaro suffered severely.

A Newspaper's Troubles.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—To-night the News-Journal office, at the Southeast corner of Sixth and Vine Streets, was not lighted up. The windows of the composing room and of the editorial rooms were dark. The circumstance attracted universal attention. Members of the editorial staff did not seem to understand the situation. Mr. Charles M. Steele, business manager of the concern, said that he had left his regular business to make a success of the News-Journal under specific promises by the stockholders to give him backing, and that the stockholders failed and refused to come up to their contract. After they had committed themselves to a refusal this afternoon, Mr. Steele forthwith dismissed the printers and the editorial force, paid them off to date and was about to shut up the office. The stockholders, when notified of this proceeding, quickly held a meeting and came to terms, whereupon Mr. Steele called the printers together and gathered up his editors, and, at ten o'clock to-night, prepared to issue a paper to-morrow. It was not contemplated by him that the paper would stop longer than for one day.

Think It Over.

It will only cost you the postage on a letter to write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, and get their opinion of your case, if you are suffering from any form of disease which your physician has failed to cure, as consumption, neuralgia, catarrh, rheumatism, etc. State it clearly and they will answer promptly, honestly telling you, in view of all the conditions you state, whether they believe Compound Oxygen will do you any good. At the same time they will send you documents containing a history of the discovery of this remarkable substance and a large record of cures which have been made during the last thirteen years, from which you will be able to judge for yourself of its claim upon your confidence.

A poet says: "I am not dead." But we can't always tell. Poets exagerate so wildly, and call it poetic license, that it is best not to believe the statement quoted until it is corroborated by some reliable person.

We presume there is not as much house painting as usual going on in St. Louis this year, as the papers there speak of a decided decline in art interests.

Fire Near Snow Shoe.

On Monday afternoon, April 28, a dark column of smoke visible in the sky from Bellefonte marked the existence of a vast fire not far off, and therefore we were not surprised to hear that a great and destructive conflagration was raging. The splendid saw mill of Hoover, Hughes & Co., about three miles west of Snow Shoe, proved to be the prey of the devouring element. We have not learned the origin of the fire, but are informed that the destruction of the valuable property was complete. Of six houses near the mill every one was destroyed. These houses were owned by the firm, of which E. C. Humes, President of the First National Bank, this place, is a member. The flames also communicated to the large piles of lumber owned by the company about two-thirds of which was destroyed. The loss amounts to many thousands. There was an insurance of $8,000 on the mill and $6,000 on the lumber. The houses were insured for $1700. All the insurance was with the agencies of J. A. Rankin & Son and Bond Valentine, of this place.

LATER PARTICULARS.

Mr. Wm. P. Humes, of this place, went to the scene of the conflagration on Monday afternoon and returned home this morning. He states that the fire began about 2 o'clock p. m. and is thought to have originated from the burning of slabs. The facilities for extinguishing the flames are limited and they burned fiercely, making the hottest fire ever known in that section. The mill, employing about sixty men, was entirely destroyed, and also a large boarding house, seven or eight dwelling houses and a store. About a million feet of lumber is saved, but all the rest—amounting to about 1,500,000 feet—became a prey to the flames. The only houses saved were two situated about half a mile from the mill near the railroad. Many of the families lost all their possessions. The loss can be only guessed at this writing, but is much larger than the insurance which amounts, in all, to about $17,000. Mr. George Hoover, the first-mentioned partner in the firm, is a well-known resident of Philipsburg; Mr. William Hughes is now living in Pittsburg.

Tree Planting.

A few days ago the News referred to the enterprising efforts of some of our citizens to encourage the planting of shade trees throughout the borough, and outlined the plan proposed to secure that object, also making suggestions in regard to placing new trees outside the gutters where there are now old trees inside the curb. To such as read that article the following circular letter may prove interesting, and we publish it with the hope that by thus giving it a wider publicity its beneficent object may be more effectually accomplished. It may be well to add, that the trees are ordered from a nursery in a more northern latitude than Bellefonte and are of a particularly hardy species with the expectation that they will endure, uninjured, the extremes of cold and heat which occur in this latitude:

BELLEFONTE, Pa., April 30, 1884.

DEAR SIR: With a view of encouraging the uniform planting of trees in our streets, and thus adding to the comfort and beauty of our town, we have ordered several hundred shade trees from one of the best nurseries in Western New York. By ordering in large quantities they have been secured at little more than half the usual price of trees of the same quality and will be furnished for planting at exact cost. They consist of Sugar Maple, Norway Maple and Horse Chestnut.

The Horse Chestnut (said to be unusually fine) will cost 63 cents each, the Norway Maple 42 cents each, and the Sugar Maple 38 cents each. We have ordered these trees and brought them to the doors of our citizens in the hope of inducing a general tree planting all over the town. If you think of planting any, it would be well to have the holes prepared in advance. In order to secure the best results, the holes should be made large—all stones and clay removed, and good soil used to fill in about the roots. The trees will be distributed from Brown's coal yard as soon as received and hauled to your door if you desire it. Please leave orders for what you want at once.

Let us all unite in adding to the comfort of our own surroundings and the beauty of our town.

On behalf of the Board of Trade.
J. H. LINGLE, Secretary. JAMES A. BEAVER, President.

—J. Artley Beeber, Esq., has been elected president of the First National bank at Williamsport, to fill the place made vacant by the death of Mr. Abram Updegraff.

Burned Again.

Dr. J. H. Huston, it will be remembered, had his home burned at Clintondale some three weeks ago and some days after moved into the dwelling of Mrs. Wm. I. Shaffer at Lamar. This morning about 7:30 o'clock, fire was discovered in the attic of the dwelling, and before it could be extinguished the roof was burned off the front building, and the dwelling otherwise damaged. The origin of the first fire was a mystery, and this fire as much so, yet the fact that it is of incendiary origin is beyond dispute We are glad to say, however, that no blame attaches to the owner of the property or the Doctor or his estimable wife. Where the blame rests may be developed. The house was on fire yesterday in the same place, but was extinguished. We learn further that the building was only insured a day or two ago by Mr. C. R. Gearhart, of this city, while the Doctor had no insurance on his furniture at all, much of which was new.—L. H. Express of Tuesday, April 29.

—"Two souls with but a single thought;
Two hearts that beat as one."

That was the sentiment with which the beautiful drama of "Ingomar" closed on Monday evening, and the play throughout was equally beautiful and elevating. There are two excellent artists in the Miss Coombs' Company; these are Miss Coombs and H. W. Mitchell; the other members of the company are not worth noticing. Miss Coombs is beautiful in person and as Parthenia delivered her lines with perfect grace and pathos; while Mr. Mitchell was truly heroic as Ingomar. The audience was not as large as it should have been. If the company included an orchestra and would begin the performance more promptly greater satisfaction would be given.

—Mr. E. J. Swavely, the handsome local of the Centre Democrat, visited Cedars' ice cream saloon Wednesday evening in company with a gentleman and lady. E. J. magnanimously volunteered to treat his friends to the cool refreshment and called for a saucer of cream with three spoons in it. The lady who graces the saloon as waitress took the tall editor at his word and brought the saucers of cream with three spoons placed therein, and extending out much like the spokes in a wagon wheel. The editor explained, acknowledged that he was the victim of his own joke and softly murmured, "I hope the DAILY NEWS won't hear of this."

—Mr. Martin Stover, who resides on Mr. Robert Valentine's farm, exhibited two huge cigars to us the other day, made from tobacco raised on the farm. One was about eighteen inches in length and the other measured twenty-seven inches, the latter being the most stupendous thing of the kind we ever saw. The wrapper of the large cigar is composed of a single leaf and was made by Mr. Garner. Such a cigar would delight the heart of Ex-President Grant, but we guess Blaine will be the man who will eventually receive it as Mr. Stover will probably present it to the next President of the U. S.

—There was a very small audience on Monday evening in the Court House to listen to Prof. Buckhout's lecture on "Small Fruits." As a preliminary proceeding, Mr. John B. Mitchell took the chair as the presiding officer and John Kline, Esq., was chosen secretary, H. H. Harsh being absent. The lecture was listened to with great interest. It was a most excellent and instructive talk however, and well repaid those who heard it.

—The sale of the residence of the late David Wagner to Mr. Daniel Garman has been consummated. The price as heretofore given in the News—$11,000—is correct, and $4,000 of the purchase money was paid in cash. The residence is the most commodious in Bellefonte and it is very beautifully finished inside. Further improvements and alterations will be made and Mr. Garman will move into it during next June.

—During the performance of "Ingomar," Monday evening, small handbills announcing the lecture of Col. Chas. J. Armes in the Court House next Thursday evening, were distributed among the audience. Miss Chamberlain, of Philadelphia, will appear the same night and aid in making the entertainment interesting, by readings and recitations.

—The State Temperance Constitutional Amendment association will hold a convention in Altoona in early June. Judge Agnew, Hon. J. B. Finch, of Nebraska, Col. George W. Bain, of Kentucky, and other prominent and brilliant workers in the cause will be there.

—The funeral services over the remains of the late Mr. Peter Wian occurred last Friday morning.

Bellefonte's Relief for Brisbin.

Chief Burgess John Ardell called a meeting of the citizens of Bellefonte in the Court House Saturday morning at 9.30 o'clock which was attended by about fifty gentlemen. Mr. Ardell was elected chairman and Messrs. Swavely and Bailey secretaries. J. G Love, Esq., at the chairman's request, read several telegrams which had passed between him and Mr. Theodore VanDuzen, acting mayor of the borough of Houtzdale, the purport of which was that 3,000 people were homeless and immediate aid was required.

The chairman further stated that Captain Potter, the agent of the Pennsylvania railroad in Bellefonte, had at his request communicated with Superintendent S. S. Blair to have such supplies as should be provided shipped, free of cost, to Houtzdale, and before the meeting adjourned the news was received that the Pennsylvania Railroad would do so. He stated that Capt. Potter had consented to receive freight until 2 o'clock that afternoon to ship the same day, the usual limit of time for receiving such goods being 11 a. m. The most suitable articles to send were decided to be meat, flour, potatoes, tea, coffee and sugar. While the meeting was in progress the following cash subscriptions were received:

A. O. Furst	$ 5
Daniel Rhoads	5
John B. Linn	5
Williams Bros	2
John G. Love	10
J. S. Catananch	2
W. B. Rankin	2
Judge Irwin	10

F. E. Bible	5
Isaac Mitchell	5
R. M. McEnally	1
W. C. Heinle	5
W. W. Potter	5
E. J. Swaveley	1
D. C. Keller	5
Total	$82

Our townsman, Bond Valentine, also gave $5 after the meeting and Gen. Jas. A. Beaver announced that he would give $25 worth of whatever is most needed, increasing the subscriptions to $112. J. L. Spangler gave order for ten bushels of potatoes at Meese's store. The following subscriptions of flour were given, T. R. Reynolds & Co., saying that for this object they would sell the flour at $5.25 per barrel:

Mr. Geo. W. Jackson, 10 barrels; Robt Valentine, one barrel; D. G. Bush 1 barrel; the following gentlemen gave two barrels each; W. R. Teller Judge A. Hoy, D. H. Hastings, E. M. Blanchard, J. A. McClain, John Curtin, J. W. Gephart, H. S. Sayre, A. O. Furst, R. M. McGee. This makes a total of 32 barrels of flour, or $168, running the subscriptions up to $280. In addition to the above, Sechler & Co., and S. & A. Loeb, grocers, each contributed $10 worth of provisions, increasing the total to $300.

A committee of five gentleman was appointed to solicit further subscriptions, and met with great success.

Immense Destruction of Property By Fire.

On Friday morning the atmosphere was quite clear, but the high wind that rose about 8 o'clock and continued to increase in violence during the day drove clouds of smoke through the air, almost obscuring the sun and giving evidence that the forest fires near Philipsburg, Snow Shoe, Houtzdale and Clearfield were being fanned into destructive conflagrations.

Several rumors were circulated during the morning regarding the damage caused by fire, which we ascertained to be incorrect, but the reports received in the afternoon prove to be too true.

At Glenn Harris where the mill of P. B. Crider & Son is located the employes spent a large part of the day fighting the forest fires which threatened to envelop the mill property in destruction. Two hundred feet of hose and several men were sent from this place. At times the flames advanced dangerously near, but desperate efforts aided often by a favorable turn in the wind averted the casualty so greatly feared.

The most startling report was received at 3 o'clock. It announced the destruction of Brisbin, or Houtzville, by fire. Three thousand people, it said, were rendered homeless and destitute. Among the valuable properties destroyed at this place was the large saw mill of Hoover, Hughes & Co., the same firm that lost a similar property near Snow Shoe only four days before. This was the most extensive of the three mills and the loss, including between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 feet of lumber, was appalling. This firm lost about $60,000 at this place. They have an insurance of about $45,000. E. C. Humes, Esq., of this place, is interested financially in both of these properties to a greater extent than any other person. He departed for Houtzville on the 5 o'clock train Friday afternoon. The only remaining mill property owned by this unlucky firm is located at Pennfield, Clearfield county.

Mr. Henry J. Walker, the proprietor of a large boarding house near Snow Shoe, was in Bellefonte on Friday afternoon. About 4 o'clock he received word that his boarding house had been burned to the ground. He hurried home to ascertain the extent of his loss. These several reports caused much excitement among our citizens, who made them the chief topics of discussion.

SATURDAY'S REPORTS FROM THE FIRES.

P. B. Crider & Co. have succeeded in saving their mill property, but many of their lumber camps are burned and the loss will be heavy. Boak's mill near Snow Shoe was in danger and wet carpets were spread on the roof of the mill to keep it from burning. Mr. Bauer, the Bellefonte groceryman, has a store building near the mill which was in danger for a while.

FIRE IN WILLIAMSPORT.

WILLIAMSPORT, May 3, 8 a. m.—Luppert's saw mill on the opposite side of the river from Williamsport, was burned yesterday. It is a total loss. Four dwelling houses and four barns, all located in this city, were burned during the day.

The Vanderbilt Road.

Work is going forward on the South Pennsylvania railroad with a commendable degree of energy. Over 2,500 men are employed, mainly on the tunnels and work will be commenced in the open country at an early day. An exchange has the following with reference to the work on the tunnels, etc.: Mr. Shannon has about 400 men at work on the Rays Hill tunnel. He is penetrating from both ends and works day and night in the shifts. He makes 400 feet a month. Charles McFadden has the same force on the Allegheny mountain tunnel, and by a similar system makes equal progress. This rate will complete both tunnels in about eighteen months. Thomas Collins has the contract for the line from the Western portal of the Allegheny mountain till within three miles of Somerset, a distance of ten miles. He has a large force at work, and is pushing it with his usual energy. That portion of the road lying between the Western portal of the Ray's Hill tunnel and the borough of Everett will be put under contract in a few days. Over in Westmoreland county a force of 200 men are hammering away at Knupp's tunnel, which will be the connecting link between that county and Somerset, when the road is complete. Patterson & Kuhn are the contractors for Knupp's tunnel, and their contract includes a mile at each end of the long hole. Page & Co., an Ohio firm, have the next section of about eight miles, but they will sublet the greater part of it. In the horse-shoe bend, between Laurel Hill and Chestnut Ridge the new road will have a more extended and symmetrical one than the famous Allegheny mountain horse-shoe bend of the Pennsylvania railroad. The Chestnut Ridge horse-shoe bend sweeps northward for more than a mile from the Felgar road into Cook township, and by the most graceful and perfect curves returns to a point on the Beistle farm, making the distance between the termini of the horse-shoe but a few hundred feet.

A Base Ball Association.

On Saturday evening quite a large number of Bellefonte gentlemen met in Justice John I Rankin's office for the purpose of forming a base ball association. Mr. C. G. McMillen was elected President and N. S. Bailey Secretary and Treasurer. The roll of membership was signed by thirty-one as follows: S. W. Laird, C. G. McMillen, Newton S. Bailey, Thos. J. Orbison, Geo. Beauford, Jas. Bayard, E. J. Swavely, H. E. Johnston, Bernard Jennings, John O'Connor, Hard P. Harris, Geo. B. Johnston, J. D. Geissinger, Andrew C. Parsons, Alex. McCafferty, Frank Garrett, Harry Flack, Joseph J. Rhoads, W. S. Furst, Geo. L. Jackson, W. P. Brew, Geo. R. Meek, R. H. Sommerville, Linn McGinley, Q. A. Daniels, O. C. Dewitt, T. Mitchell, S. F. VanOrmer, J. A. Swavely, J. P. Hughes, Harry Keller.

Messrs. E. J. Swavely and C. G. McMillen stated that the object of the organization is to form several nines for practice with the ultimate object of forming one strong nine of which all may be proud.

Harry Green was elected manager and Messrs. John O'Connor, Geo. Johnston and O. C. Dewitt were elected directors. The board of directors were instructed to confer with the manager in regard to drafting a constitution, fixing membership fees and dues, and making other arrangements such as will place the association on a good basis. The next meeting will be called by the secretary by postal card and through the papers.

A Magnificent Church Edifice.

On Wednesday afternoon we called at the parochial residence of the Catholic church and examined the plans for the new church building for the superstructure of which proposals are now being considered. Rev. Father McArdle is one of the most pleasant and obliging gentlemen we know of and very willingly exhibited the full, accurate and complete drawings to us. They are five in number, displaying every part of the beautiful edifice in detail. The front view especially will be exceedingly grand when completed, which will not be until perhaps the close of the summer of '85, although it will be advanced to such a state of completeness by the coming autumn as to present a very fair idea of what it will be when finished. The ground in front of the church will be terraced. Two steps will lead to the top of the first terrace and three more from thence into the vestibule, from which five more steps will conduct the worshipper into the main auditorium. But first we must explain that there will be three doors leading into the vestibule and at each of the front corners of the church will be a massive tower which in the course of time will be surmounted by a graceful and lofty spire, each spire penetrating the ethereal blue to an attitude of 140 feet. On the pinnacle of each spire will be a cross, on the top of each tower will be three other crosses and in the centre of the church in front will also be this beautiful Christian emblem, making nine in all. From the ground to the top of the central roof will be sixty-eight feet. The vestibule will fill a depth of about 18 feet.

As the greatest depth of the church will be 118 feet, the sanctuary to occupy 25 feet and the vestibule 18, this will leave about 75 feet for the auditorium which will be arranged with two double and two single rows of seats and three aisles. In addition to the windows admitting light and furnishing ornamentation to both the vestibule and sanctuary there will be six on either side of the church proper. The organ loft will be over the entrance. In the sanctuary, which will be elevated about a foot, will be three altars and many other desirable accessories for the proper worship of the church.

The proposals for the above ground masonry of this grand structure thus far received are all from Bellefonte parties, and as Rev. Father McArdle believes that Bellefonte has advantages over other regions for the erection of a really elegant stone building and her contractors are as skillful and reliable as are to be found in the country, it is exceedingly probable that the contract will be given to home mechanics.

May Day.

Thursday was the first day of what is sometimes called the pleasantest month in the year, but of late it has been losing its good reputation. According to what our elders tell us, it used to be observed even in this latitude in a manner that would be almost impossible now. The ladies and gentlemen—the former attired in spotless white—would resort to the woods where they would dance around a May pole and crown the prettiest girl with a garland as the "Queen of May." Thursday was one of the warmest thus far this season, but imagine how unseasonable a gauzy white dress would appear! Imagine also if you can how disagreeably cool and even dangerous it would be to spend the day in the woods. Although the sun was warm the air had about it a feeling that suggested that it had traveled over fields of snow and ice not far off. This change causes us to put our faith in the theory that the earth crust is gradually cooling off and the time may come when the Temperate zone may be as cold as the Frigid zone now is.

Rev. J. F. Delong, of the Bellefonte Reformed church, preached in Williamsport on Sunday, April 27, and the Gazette and Bulletin says that his sermon was able and eloquent.

Harry Schroyer returned from Philadelphia on Tuesday, April 29. The report that he was married while in the Quaker City is probably incorrect and made to frighten the Bellefonte girls.

Prof. Hamilton, Prof. McKee and other representatives of the State College, listened to the lecture delivered by Prof Buckhout. So did Worthy Master Leonard Rhone, of the Patrons of Husbandry.

Mr. Joshua Potter, the gentleman who was so severely injured by the explosion of a blast near Centre Hall a few weeks ago, was in Bellefonte on Monday, April 28. His wounds are healing rapidly.

Mr. C. E. Shafler, who is teaching a normal school near Milesburg, visited Bellefonte on Thursday. Mr. Shaffer is a highly intelligent, successful and deserving educator and is a desirable acquisition to any schools.

Mr. John Anderson has made extensive improvements in his saloon during the local option period. He has put in one of the patent beer fountains, or whatever you may term them, and is prepared to receive the ducats.

Mr. Wm. Gray, who taught school during last winter near Scotia, this county, is now perusing the dull details of the law in the office of Hastings & Reeder. Mr. Gray is a graduate of the State College and is splendidly qualified for the profession which he has chosen.

V. d'Invilliers, of Philadelphia, the eminent geologist who was so extensively engaged in this vicinity a year ago in examinations of Valentines & Co's and other ore lands, is again in Bellefonte expecting to remain a week or more. Society Items.

Miss Kate Jackson, daughter of Mr George W. Jackson, gave an enjoyable whist party to five or six of her friends on Thursday evening. Of course, when Miss Kate was the entertainer a rarely enjoyable time was the result.

Messrs. Charles Valentine and W. Moyer sauntered along Bishop street a few days ago and to indulge a momentary sentiment stepped into the photograph gallery in that vicinity to have their pictures taken. The result is most pleasing and satisfactory. We have received a copy of it, and as we are unable to counterfeit the figures in the NEWS we represent it by the vacant line below and invite all who are interested to call at the office, for one day only, to make a personal examination.

——Place for picture.——

Miss Scott, of Lock Haven, invited her friends to join in the pleasures of a German at her residence in that city Friday evening, in honor of Miss Jennie Reynolds of Bellefonte. Among the Bellefonte gentlemen who attended were Messrs. Gordon, McFarlane, Spangler and Perry.

—The enterprising denizens of Millheim, the home of the famous Journal, are employing their energies in preparation for a grand Memorial Day celebration, and knowing that they cannot give proper vent to their patriotic feelings in a single day they will also observe "the day we celebrate"—July 4—in first-class style. It is said that all the bands and militia east of the mountains will be there and we infer from the genial manner to which the subject is referred to that they will not object if organizations west of the mountains also participate with them. And perhaps they may come in this direction for their oratorical pyrotechnics. For instance, there's Hastings, who has the choicest sort of patriotism carefully bottled and ready to uncork. Judge Furst is prepared to make your bosoms swell with intense delight for your country. Fortney, Dale, Reeder, Gray, Bower, Spangler and others have not had occasion to unbosom themselves in praise of the "martyred heroes" and "Continental fathers" during the past year and are ready at a moment's notice to make you weep and laugh all in one breath, according to your choice.

Our Hospital.

Mrs. George Stover, of Millheim, is still quite ill.

Harvey Hauck, of Millheim, is recovering from an attack of lung fever.

George Stover, the 2-year-old son of Mr. Stover, of Miles township, climbed on a table after some glass tumblers the other day. His efforts to obtain them were not successful and he fell violently to the floor, breaking his collar bone.

Great and Small Fires.

The residence of a Mr. Dunlap, at Pine Grove, caught fire on Tuesday, April 29, and the roof was burned off.

A rumor prevailed Friday morning that the woolen mills of J. G. Irvin at Oak Hall were burning, but a telephone message from that place assures us that the alarm was occasioned by nothing more than a slight fire on the roof of the mill Friday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock. It was quickly extinguished.

—Senator Peale's announcement that he will be a candidate for the seat in Congress now filled by Mr. Curtin doesn't seem to awaken a very enthusiastic response even in his own county of Clinton. This will not offend Mr. Curtin.—Altoona Tribune.
